

Erratum: “Associations between Repeated Measures of Maternal Urinary Phthalate Metabolites and Thyroid Hormone Parameters during Pregnancy”

Lauren E. Johns, Kelly K. Ferguson, Thomas F. McElrath, Bhramar Mukherjee, and John D. Meeker

Environ Health Perspect 124(11):1808 (2016), <https://doi.org/10.1289/EHP170>

Within the LIFECODES birth cohort, the authors found that they were reverse-coding sex so that any results presented on female fetuses are actually representative of results in male fetuses, and vice versa. This resulted in errors in the first column of the last two rows of Table 1; “Male (reference)” should read “Female (reference),” while “Female” should read “Male.” The data that follows on each line is unchanged.

The authors regret the error.